Edwin Dilworth Woolley Sr. was born 28 Jun 1807 in West Chester, Pennsylvania. He became a guardian to his 6 younger brothers and sisters when his mother and father died when he was 9 and 15, respectively. He and many other Quakers followed Mary Wickersham's family west to the Ohio in the early 1830's, and he married her on one of his visits.

"Late in 1837 Edwin decided it was time to separate the man from the myth. He wanted to meet Joseph Smith and see if he looked and spoke like a prophet. One morning he arose, saddled his best horse, and rode off for Kirtland. He made the eighty-five mile trip by sundown (Rachel wrote that it was recorded in the county files as 'Ed Woolley's wild ride to see the prophet Joseph Smith')." Arrington, p. 64.

Joseph was not there, but Edwin persuaded Joseph Sr. to move from New Portage to East Rochester, Columbiana, Ohio for a few months. They brought the Egyptian mummies along to Edwin's home.

Edwin was baptized and made preparations to join the Mormons fleeing Kirtland to Far West, Missouri. Before they finished the journey, they were met by Joseph Smith in Quincy, and advised to join the group there, as many saints were now fleeing Far West.

He was one of the first to settle Nauvoo, he set up four shops in town, the last of which was 1 1/2 blocks east of the temple on Mulholland where the old seed store had been in 1846. He farmed as well. He completed 4 different proselyting missions back East while living in Nauvoo. Despite his many absences, his businesses and family prospered, enabling him to afford plenty of provisions for a large household group when they left, including:

10Jenson, Andrew , Latter-day Saint Biographical Encyclopedia, 4 vols. , Salt Lake City: Andrew Jenson History Co., 1901-36, 1:632. "Thus he could walk into a Nauvoo store and say, "Brother Wooley, we want all of your goods for the building up of the Kingdom of God." Brother Wooley (with what inner turbulences we can only guess) set about loading his merchandise into boxes, excepting only some goods on consignment from St. Louis. Calling the Prophet he offered to pack them also. The Prophet asked searchingly, "Are you really willing, Brother Wooley, to give us all of your store goods?" "Yes." Joseph, with deep feeling, embraced his shoulder and said, "then replace them on your shelves."." Actual text as Paraphrased by Dr. Truman G Madsen in "Joseph Smith and the Sources of Love" Twenty-Third Annual Joseph Smith Memorial Sermon, December 5, 1965.

"After elder Sagers and myself had visited the saints in Virginia and Ohio, (and accomplished our business with them as far as circumstances would permit,) in company with Elders E. D. Woolly, and Elisha H. Davis, started for the eastern countries, crossed the Alleghany mountains in the cold month of January, proclaiming the everlasting gospel when ever an opportunity was presented; visited the saints in Bedford co. and after a journey of four weeks, arrived in Chester co. Pa. Here we planted the standard of truth among Elder Woolly's friends and acquaintances; doors were open on the right and left, and in a very short time whole neighborhoods were in an uproar, on account of the strange doctrine as they called it, which had come to their ears. Mormonism, as it was termed, was the principle subject of discussion. The dust was brushed from many a bible which I presume had lain useless for years, and a general search of the scriptures was made, so that it was said, and I think in truth, the bible was read more by the people in a few weeks after we arrived in the place, than it had been before for many years. Indeed, a certain doctor acknowledged in public that he had read the bible more within 3 days than he had in 15 years before—Soon after arriving in the co. Elder Woolly and myself visited West Chester, the county seat, a town containing about 2,000 inhabitants, and held several meetings in the old fellows' hall. . . . We continued our preaching in different places through the county for several weeks, when 4 came forward and obeyed the gospel; Elder Woolley then left us for his family in Ohio, . . . The church in Chester county, now number 30 members, and many more are believing, whom, I trust will obey the gospel soon. The Lord has commenced a great and good work among this people, and I feel strong in the spirit, and am determined to thrust in my sickle, and reap, while the harvest lasts so that when we return, we may return laden with sheaves, pray for us dear brother, and may the Lord help us all, Amen. Yours, in the bond, of the new and everlasting covenant. LORENZO BARNES Monmouth Co. N. J. Sept. 10th 1839. D. C. Smith and E. Robinson."

18Madsen, Susan Arrington , The Lord Needed a Prophet, Salt Lake City: Deseret Book Co., 1996, p. 109. "Heber and his mother were members of Salt Lake City's Thirteenth Ward, and it was here that his testimony of the gospel was born. Some of the most prominent Church leaders were members of this ward, and Heber loved to hear them speak. He sometimes found himself with tears in his eyes after hearing a humble brother or sister bear testimony of the Prophet Joseph Smith or tell a miraculous missionary experience. However, if a speaker began to go on too long in sacrament meeting, Heber chuckled to see Bishop Edwin D. Woolley reach out and tug the long-winded preacher on the coattails. That was the signal to sit down."

26Arrington, Leonard J., From Quaker to Latter-day Saint: Bishop Edwin D. Woolley, xii. "Edwin heard of the Mormon prophet, Joseph Smith, Jr., and went some ninety miles to Kirtland, Ohio, to meet him. The Prophet was away at the time; Edwin instead met the father, Joseph Smith, Sr., and invited him to spend the winter of 1837-38 with him in East Rochester, which Mr. Smith did. (At the time, Joseph Smith, Sr., was the Patriarch to the Church.) On December 24, 1837, Edwin Woolley was baptized and confirmed a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and the following day was ordained a high priest. He was set apart to preside over the branch of the Church at East Rochester. He undertook an early mission for the Church to Pennsylvania and was instrumental in converting Edward Hunter, . . ."

28Coray, Howard , Autobiography (The Writing of Joseph Smith's History by Dean C. Jessee Fn, BYU St, Church Historian's Office, pp. 17, 19-20. "I was then requested by bro. Joseph to undertake, in connection with E.D. Woolley, the compilation of the Church History. This I felt to decline, as writing books was something, in which I had had no experience. But bro. Joseph insisted on my undertaking it, saying, if I would do so, it would prove a blessing to me as long as I should live. His persuasive arguments prevailed; and accordingly in a short time, bro. Woolley and myself, were busily engaged in compiling the Church history. The Prophet was to furnish all the materials; and our business, was not only to combine, and arrange in chronological order, but to spread out or amplify not a little, in as good historical style as may be. Bro. Woolley's education not being equal to mine, he was to get the matter furnished him in as good shape as he could; and my part was to go after him, and fix his up as well as I could, making such improvement and such corrections in his grammar and style as I might deem necessary. On seeing his work, I at once discovered, that I had no small job on my hands, as he knew nothing whatever of grammar; however, I concluded to make the best I could of a bad job, and thus went to work upsetting and recasting; as well as casting out not a little. Seeing how his work was handled, he became considerably discouraged; and rather took offence at the way and manner in which I was doing things, and consequently soon withdrew from the business. Immediately after bro. Woolley left, I succeeded in obtaining the services of Dr. Miller;"
